LECTURES & MEETINGS

The Willson Center for Humanities and Arts at the University of Georgia

The Legacy of Classical Antiquity: Re-visioning the Past

September 18-19, 2014

Research seminar hosted at the University of Georgia Cortona Residential Center, Italy

The Legacy of Classical Antiquity: Re-visioning the Past explores the legacy of classical antiquity as the nexus of the visual and cultural history of Italy and its modern interpretations. The seminar offers researchers a unique opportunity to examine material culture and artifacts in the Museo dell'Accademia Etrusca e della Città di Corona (MAEC), whose collection represents a cross-fertilization of Etruscan and Roman civilizations.

Featured speakers: PENELOPE DAVIES, Division Chair, Art History, University of Texas; MARIO ERASMO, Professor of Classics, University of Georgia; NIGEL LLEWELLYN, Head of Research, Tate; ANDREW WALLACE-HADRILL, Director of Research, Faculty of Classics, University of Cambridge.

COURSES

MA LITERATURE,
LANDSCAPE
AND ENVIRONMENT

How does literature debate and reflect humanity's relationship with 'Nature'? What makes 'the country', 'the wilderness' or 'the city' what it is? How does literature respond to environmental destruction?
